MRS. WM. HALL DIES AT WEBSTER

Remains Brought to Cloverport
For Interment--Funeral Held
At the Baptist Church Sunday Morning

FORMER CLOVERPORT CITIZEN

The funeral of Mrs. William Hall, of Webster, was held in the Baptist church in this city Sunday morning. The services were conducted by the Rev. Mr. E. O. Cottrell. The interment took place in Cloverport cemetery.

Mrs. Hall died Saturday morning at her home at Webster. Last November she suffered a stroke of paralysis and was never able to speak afterwards. While she could not utter a word, she would often give affectionate expressions of gratitude for the sweet attentions given her during her long illness.

For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Hall made their home in Cloverport. The family has been pleasantly remembered here and their sad return to this city Sunday brought back lovely memories of the mother.

Mrs. Hall was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex J. Turple, of near Hardinsburg. She was born February 15, 1843. In her young life she was a favorite with all her friends and school mates. As she grew into womanhood her love was centered on her husband and children. Especially did she have a tender, loving sympathy for orphans. She was always ready to do charity work.

There is only one sister, Mrs. Frank Harrington, of Muldraugh, Ky., and Mrs. Henry C. Pate, of Cloverport, of whom she was very fond of, was her niece. Besides the husband, six sons and one daughter are left.

The children that came home were: S. N. Hall and W. L. Hall, of Newbern, Tenn.; S. R. Hall, of Waterloo, la., and W. F. Hall, of Ekron, Ky. F. W. Hall and E. M. Hall could not attend the funeral on account of illness. Miss Lizzie Hall was at her mother's bedside constantly.

Those who came from Webster to attend the funeral were: Miss Essie Kendall, Miss Myrtle Lyddan, Mrs. Frank Payne, Mrs. Clint Crutcher, Mr. Ale Kendall and Miss Ora Hendricks, Mrs. W. H. Holt, Irvington, Arthur Robbins and Miss Laura Robbins, Hawesville.

Card of Thanks.

We deeply appreciate the kind attentions of our neighbors and friends of Webster and Cloverport during the sad hours that have come to us. Sincere thanks are extended in the telephone operators for their kindness.

Wm. Hall and Family.

CLOVERPORT DEPOT

L. H. & St. L. R. R. Station Repaired and Re-Painted. Personal Attention of the President and General Manager.

The L. H. & St. L. passenger depot in this city is undergoing many improvements. It has been raised eight inches and has been repainted. "We are especially proud of the work because the president and general manager gave it his personal attention," said Mr. Behen, the agent at this place. Mr. Hudson took a great deal of interest in the appearance of the depot when he was here as civil engineer for the road. He built the station and planted the trees which will be a lasting benefit and pleasure to the public. The Cloverport depot has a beautiful lawn and is one of the most attractive stations on the road.

Huge Ice Cream Freezer.

Brown's Sanitary Restaurant has installed an ice cream freezer with a 200 gallon capacity. As advertised, Mr. Brown's ices are known for their purity and quality.

OILED STREETS FOR CLOVERPORT

Main and Elm Streets Will Be Oiled and Others Will Follow Suit--All Main Street Citizens Co-operating With Cash.

GREAT RELIEF FROM DUST.

Main and Elm streets of Cloverport will be oiled at an early date. A movement is on foot now to perfect the streets and get the oil for them. All the business men are co-operating and putting up the cash in advance for the oil. O. T. Odewalt is making the collections, and is getting along splendidly with them. Chas. Fallon started the movement and Mr. Odewalt has successfully carried it through. It will mean a great relief from the dust for the business houses which contain the food, clothing, medicines and every thing consumed by the people of this place.

The city will have the streets cleaned and put in perfect shape for the oil. By the last of next week, it is thought, the work will be finished.

FLYING SQUADRON

Coming to Louisville--National Prohibition Force to Hold Sessions May 9, 10 and 11.

Arrangements have been completed for the coming of the Flying Squadron to Louisville May 9, 10 and 11. The sessions will be held in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church. The squadron is not under any political management and its object is the unification of all who desire national prohibition and to strengthen every movement for temperance in the field. Among the noted speakers will be Dr. Chas. M. Sheldon, who wrote "In His Steps."

Mr. Reidel Here

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Reidel, of Scranton, Pa., were visiting his brother, Charlie Reidel, at Holt, last week. They were en route home from Los Angeles, Cal., and the Panama Exposition. He reports his mother, sisters and brothers in fine health. He saw the Vests and they were all right. Mr. Reidel is line foreman for the Scranton Electric Light Company.

Celebrates Birthday.

Mrs. B. A. Hardaway, of Bewleyville, recently celebrated her eighty-second birthday. Many were present at the dinner. The center piece was a cake with eighty-two candles on it. She was given a post card shower by distant friends, receiving seventy-five cards.

To Serve on Federal Petit Jury.

L. V. Chapin and Mrs. Chapin left yesterday for Owensboro where Mr. Chapin serves on the Federal Petit Jury. While in the city they will spend several days the guests of Mrs. Wm. Sahle and Mrs. Harned Pate.

LAST DAYS OF C. H. S. CROWDED TO THE TOP

Commencement Exercises Announced For May 21--Invitations Out--Final Examinations Are on--Other Plans.

SENIORS HAPPY AND BUSY

The Commencement Exercises of the Cloverport High School will take place at the Baptist church May 21. Arrangements are being made to have an attractive and varied program. The class for several weeks have been working on their orations and readings and now have them nearly prepared.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at the Methodist church Sunday evening, May 16, by Rev. Robert E. Reeves, of Irvington.

Class Day exercises will be held Wednesday evening, May 19, at the Opera House, and the class of 1915 is expecting to have the exercises unusually interesting and original.

On Thursday evening of the twentieth the Senior play will be given at the Opera House by the members of the Senior Class, assisted by the Sophomore boys. The play is entitled "Polly in Politics."

Beautiful invitations have been issued by the class. Their class colors being royal purple and white, which makes the invitations very attractive. The invitations were printed at The Breckenridge News office.

The class officers are as follows: Jos. B. Ross, president; Tula D. Babbage, vice president; Effie M. Robinson, secretary, and Jessie L. Hemphill, treasurer. The other two members of the class are Rosa V. Sippel and Willie W. Seaton.

The valedictory will be delivered by Willie W. Seaton, as he was the grand honor pupil.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Convention Will Be Held at Webster This Coming Saturday--Dinner on the Grounds

The Fourth Magisterial District Sunday School Convention will be held at Webster Saturday, May 8. All day session, dinner on the ground. Each Sunday School in that district should send at least one delegate and a report of their school. A big crowd is expected. Miss Maud L. Dance and other State workers will be present.

Viewing Dixie Highway

On Monday, Frank P. Malin, member of the late law firm of Miller, Sandidge & Malin, of Owensboro, will arrive at Hardinsburg to assist Claude Mercer through the May term of the Circuit Court, because Mercer's duties as Dixie Highway Commissioner compelled him to be absent during part of the term of court. Mr. Malin will be in his office and will help him. On Thursday morning the two Kentucky Commissioners leave Louisville by auto for Nashville, Tenn., over one of the proposed Dixie Highway routes, and will return by another. On May 20 the Commissioners from the seven States meet at Chattanooga to finally determine the route from Chicago to Miami, Fla.

ELECTION

Of School Trustees Takes Place Saturday--Many Women Vote--Keith and Oelze Re-elected

R. L. Oelze with 87 votes and J. P. Keith with 83 votes, were re-elected school trustees at the election held at C. H. S. Saturday. Dr. E. C. McDonald got 14 votes and D. B. Phelps got 9 votes.

L. V. Chapin, John Morris Gregory and Robert Polk were the election officers. Nearly as many women as men voted. At one time a count was made, showing that 36 men and 33 women had voted and the average continued the same through the afternoon.

The trustees of the school now are as follows: Chas. Kiel, Shelby Conrad, R. L. Oelze, T. F. Sawyer and J. P. Keith.

DR. BAUCUM

Makes Narrow Escape of Burning to Death--Gasoline Explosion Thursday Afternoon

Dr. Jesse Baucum got both hands severely burned Thursday afternoon and all his engagements for dental work will be cancelled for at least two weeks. He carried no insurance on his hands.

The accident was the result of a gasoline explosion. Dr. Baucum and Thos. Faith, his father-in-law, were waxing away for the doctor's bout, Bright Star. While Dr. Baucum was mixing a floor wax and gasoline together, Mr. Faith lighted a cigarette, and the gasoline ignited and the whole room was ablaze. Dr. Baucum's hands were covered with flames. Only the calmness displayed by both men saved their lives and the building in which were his office and living apartment. The fire originated from a gallon of gasoline and one match, which shows people cannot be too cautious with gasoline.

If you expect to attend the Exposition at San Francisco, Cal., before you make any arrangements write J. C. Crutcher, R. R. Agent, Webster, Ky., as he will make this trip August 4 and will have a Pullman sleeper for his party for the entire trip. Stop overs on going trip at Denver, Col., Colorado Springs and Salt Lake City, with an automobile tour of each city, seeing the sights. He recently spent a week in San Francisco, Cal., visiting the Exposition and arranging for this trip. Party limited to 20. Rate $129.50. Seven days in San Francisco, Cal. This is an all expense tour.

Mr. Phelps Ill.

W. B. Phelps continues ill at the home of his son, D. B. Phelps and Mrs. Phelps in this city. Mr. Phelps has been in a serious condition for some time.

DR. BARBOUR WILL LECTURE TONIGHT

At The American Theater--Children's Diseases Will Be Treated--Dr. Allen, of Lexington, Next Sunday Night.

SPECIAL MUSIC ARRANGED

Dr. P. F. Barbour, of the University of Louisville, will lecture on Children's Diseases tonight at the American Theater. Sunday night, May 9, Dr. Allen, of Lexington, will be here.

Last Wednesday night Dr. Milton H. Board, of Louisville, gave a splendid lecture. One excellent point he made was that whiskey was no longer prescribed by the best doctors. He gave the preventives for typhoid fever, which will be very helpful to the people of Cloverport, if his advice is heeded.

Sunday night Dr. A. D. Willmott, of Louisville, gave an address that made everybody appreciate a good physician. His remarks were the relations of the laity and the physician. He placed character as the most important asset to look for in choosing a doctor.

The music Sunday night was greatly enjoyed by the crowd that taxed the capacity of the theater. Among the musicians of interest was Mr. Maxell, of Monroe, Wis., who played the coronet. Mr. Maxell married Miss Lillian Sippel, of this city.

STATE MEETING

Of Kentucky Federation at Lexington--Mrs. Chas. Chamberlain Will Attend.

Mrs. Chas. Chamberlain, the third vice president of the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs, is anxious that all the Federated clubs in this district send a delegate to the State meeting at Lexington May 18 to 20. Speakers from New York, Chicago and Toledo are on the program. Education and civic improvements will be the leading subjects treated. Luncheons and automobile trips over the bluegrass will be the social features.

Will Go To Atlanta.

The Woman's Missionary Council of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, which met at Little Rock, Ark., last week, will go to Atlanta next year. The invitation was extended by the churches, clubs and business men of Atlanta.

At the Council meeting Kentucky pledged $5,000 for missions. The largest pledge, $27,500, was made by South Georgia. The grand total of the work done by the Missionary Societies in the South was $804,937.98. Aside from the spiritual uplift accomplished by the Southern women.

COOPER TO HAVE BIG BREAD LINE

Proceeds From Sale of Celebrated Tanlac to Feed Poor.

Louisville, May 4.—L. T. Cooper, the noted "Tanic Man," will establish and maintain, at his own personal expense, a "bread line" in Louisville this winter. Mr. Cooper conceived and began executing this idea as quietly as he performed his remarkable relief work among the Dayton flood sufferers in 1913.

Louisville will, therefore, be unique in its relation with the rest of the country, because this city will have the only "bread line" outside of New York and maybe a few other larger cities of the world, where the plan has been established and is now maintained by the charitable organizations.

Mr. Cooper spent the afternoon looking over several available locations for the "bread line" and he will probably be prepared to state definitely by today just where the work will be carried on. He has also been in communication with local bakeries, and an agreement with reference to the bread and coffee supply has been practically reached.

Mr. Cooper, who is one of the most magnanimous of men, has always been in sympathy with the poor and unfortunate. The "bread line" will therefore be only another exemplification of his nature. A large percentage of the profits from the sale of his celebrated preparation, Tanlac, the medicine that is accomplishing such remarkable results in cases of catarrh, stomach, liver and kidney troubles, will be devoted to charity and her children in this city.

In commenting upon this great undertaking, Mr. Cooper said:

"Since a mere boy, I have always been inclined to help those who were less fortunate than myself, and in each city I visit I have invariably shown my sympathy for the poor by performing some service at my own personal expense that would bring a bit of genuine charity directly to them. I can, therefore, imagine nothing, among the several charitable plans I now have in mind, that will prove of as much benefit as a 'bread line.' The necessary details connected with the plan will be perfected by me this week."

Tanlac, the celebrated medicine now being introduced by Mr. Cooper, can be bought at Wedding's drug store, Cloverport, Ky., and at Livingston Pharmacy, Irvington, Ky.

CLOVERPORT'S BOATING SEASON

River Will Be More Popular Than Ever This Summer—Boats Being Launched For Fishing Trips and Parties.

LIFE ON THE RIVER BEGINS.

That the river will be more popular than ever this summer is evident by the number of boats being built, repaired and equipped for safety at this early date. Including one from Tobinsport there will be a baker's dozen in Cloverport's harbor within the next two weeks. Nearly all the boats are for mere pleasure, but the rules and regulations required by the United States Government will be carried out to a letter. The water craft this season will not have new members altogether, there are the three gasoline launches that have been close friends for many summers, the Mary Jane, the Nancy and the David M.

Probably the first stranger will be the "Autogo," belonging to Paul Lewis, cashier of the Bank of Cloverport. The boat will be ready to christen in a few days. Her dress is white with yellow trimmings, and out on the Ohio she looks as if she had a band of gold securely fastened around her. The cushions are of white canvas with white button fastenings. Mr. Lewis is enthusiastic over the river and outdoor life, and no doubt, will find happy recreation in the Autogo after banking hours.

"The Bright Star" will be two years old this summer, as the owner, Dr. Bancum, became interested in yachting last year. This little gasoline launch improves with age, as Dr. Bancum is continually buying new equipment for it. Dr. Bancum and Mrs. Bancum are both generous with their invitations and especially her people get to enjoy many happy hours with them on the river.

Besides the Mary Jane, the Dart belongs to the houseboat, The Bohemia. Another house boat at the lower harbor is "The Clover Blossom," which is the home of Mr. Beamer. These houseboats are never taken out of the river except for special repairs. They are well equipped and furnished for both summer and winter.

"Chub," the canoe belonging to Adis Kramer, will come out with a new name this season. Forrest Freeman has bought Mr. Beamer's boat. Mr. Freeman will soon have the boat ready to launch.

Rather Pate is getting his boat in trim for the water this week. It will be called "Johnny B." for his son, John Burton Pate. The neighbor from the north is "Harry Curtis," belonging to Cmt Ryan. Mr. Ryan makes many trips to and from Tobinsport every day.

The boat owners have a great satisfaction in knowing that they can have their boats perfected right at home in the hands of the Cloverport Boat and Machine Company. This is a stimulus to boat owners to know that they can find help, when it is needed, in Cloverport's own harbor.

SAVING SIXTY DOLLARS

Not Once, But Every Time a Bushel of Corn is Planted.

BY HARLAN DEAVOR, IN FARM AND FIRESIDE.

One good way to remove kernels without damaging them.

SEED corn that will germinate 100 per cent is worth $60 a bushel more than seed corn that will germinate only 75 per cent.

The 100 per cent seed corn can be secured only by the use of a germinator, or tester as it is very frequently called. Corn can be tested for not to exceed 60 cents a bushel.

On an average a bushel of corn will plant 8 acres. If each acre produces 60 bushels of corn, which is only a good yield in the corn belt, and it is worth 50 cents a bushel the corn from eight acres will be worth $240.

The difference between 100 per cent and 75 per cent of that amount is $60, which represents the difference in value of the two bushels of seed being compared.

Of course this does not take into consideration any other factors such as insects, infertile soil, lack of moisture, and other climatic conditions which would tend to lessen the yield.

Poor Seed Can Never Grow Good Corn.

If poor seed is planted the yield is sure to be small; but good seed, if nothing else prevents, will produce large yields.

According to the U. S. D. A. approximately fifteen million bushels of seed corn are planted each year. Twenty per cent or from two to three million bushels does not grow.

If this corn had been tested the poor corn could have been used for feed at a saving of from a million to a million and a half dollars.

Twelve large ears of corn will plant an acre. If one of the ears failed to grow there would be a loss of at least $2 on the yield of an acre of corn.

This ear could have been tested and thrown out for six tenths of a cent.

From past experience I have found that each ear should be tested separately. By taking 200 or 300 grains at random from a pile of seed ears I can get the average per cent of germination, but I would have no way of determining which ears germinated and which did not. If instead I take a number of grains from each ear and number the ear to correspond with the number of the square in the germinator in which I place the grains, I can find the weak or dead ears and throw them out.

I have seen ears of corn that were almost perfect in shape, type of kernel, and color which proved to be weak in germination. Appearance only aids in testing seed corn; the germinator does the rest. In 1912 I gathered seed corn at three different periods.

Three Kinds of Corn.

First, I gathered the seed ears from my breeding plot. This was done early in October before the early frosts.

Second, as I gathered the crop from the general fields I saved more seed in case I should need it. This corn had been frosted in the field.

Third, as I fed the corn out of the crib I picked out more good-looking ears, as it was evident by that time that there would be a scarcity of good seed.

The corn from the three different gatherings were kept separate.

I began testing this seed in March. The first germinator was filled with grains from ears that had been gathered at the three different periods.

The corn that was gathered early in the fall tested 99 per cent good; that gathered at corn-picking time, 67 per cent; and that picked out of the crib, 33 per cent. None of the latter was saved, but the other was tested and the poor ears were thrown out.

I used a home-made crate germinator. It is 4 feet long, 1½ feet wide, and 2 inches deep. It is made of light-weight, thin lumber, all but the ends and the partition, which are made of ¾-inch boards.

The partition is put across the center to strengthen it. The top is divided into spaces 1½ inches square. This was done by sawing down half an inch at each 1½-inch space along the sides and ends. Galvanized wire the size of bailing wire was strung through these notches, lengthwise and crosswise of the germinator.

The wires are woven in; that is, underneath one wire, over the next, under the next, and so on. This holds the wires firm, and they stay in place.

The squares are numbered from 1 to 264. The numbers of the outer row of squares are marked on the sides and ends of the crate. The number of any of the inside squares can be determined by counting in.

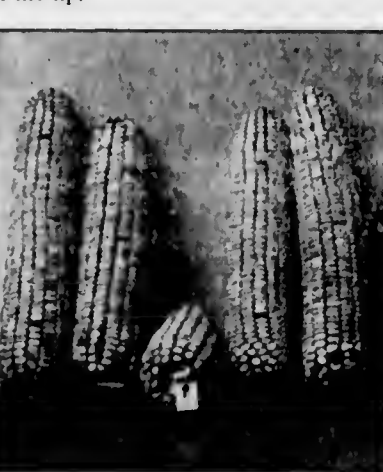

The Tester Tells the Story.

The crate is first filled, level with the wires, with sawdust, and the grains of corn are placed on the sawdust. Some authorities advise boiling the sawdust, before using, to kill the molds and fungus spores.

I extract six grains from each ear of corn by the following methods: I hold the ear of corn in my hand with the butt of the ear toward me and the thumb and forefinger grasping it at the center.

With a pocket knife I pry out a grain about 2 inches from the butt.

Revolve the ear one fourth way to the right and extract a grain from the center. Give it another quarter turn to the right and take a grain from within 2 inches of the tip.

Note the numbered cardboard on the butt of the ear. This corresponds to a square in the tester.

keeps the courses level.

Before the corn in the germinator is wet it should be covered with a cloth to prevent the grains from being displaced. After the sawdust has become thoroughly soaked with warm water the cloth should be covered with oilcloth to prevent evaporation. There is little danger of getting the sawdust too wet, as any surplus water will drain away.

The corn will germinate best if kept at a temperature of 77 degrees Fahrenheit. I keep my germinator over a furnace. The heat, then, is applied at the bottom and gives good results. The corn will germinate enough to count out on the fourth or fifth day.

When I count out the germinated grains I am careful to notice whether there is a good root and sprout to each grain.

If corn does not germinate strongly under such favorable conditions as these, what would be the outcome if it should be planted in the field under less favorable conditions?

Ears whose grains do not grow when tested should be thrown out for feed.

In this germinator (only a part of it is shown) the kernels were laid on cloth. It is easy to see which ears were dead. Ears numbers 7 and 12, to play safe, should also be thrown out.

Those that show a weak germination should also be thrown out.

If all but one or two grains from one ear germinate strong, and these do not germinate at all, it would be well to study that ear to find out the probable reason for the difference. Possibly the tip broke off when the grain was extracted from the ear, thus exposing the germ, in which case it might rot, or possibly some portion of the ear has been damaged while the remainder is good. The good part can be saved and the poor part thrown aside, if seed corn is scarce.

By the time 3 or 4 bushels have been tested you will find it a pleasure and not a task to test seed corn.

You Can Kill the Beetles.

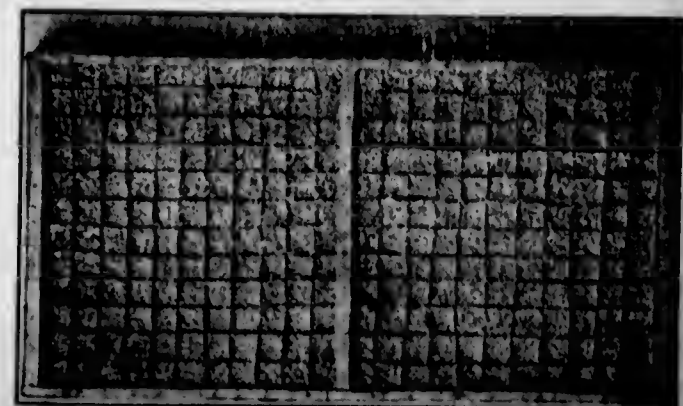

If we could kill off all the June bugs, or May beetles, we should have no white grubs.

Each female beetle lays between fifty and a hundred eggs, each of which is pretty likely to hatch into a grub to feed on corn roots, grains, strawberries, and the like.

There are three well-known ways to kill the beetles.

One is to spray poison on the leaves of the trees on which they feed.

The second is to spread sheets, tarpaulins, or canvas under the trees, and jar the beetles down with a battering ram made of a plank with a cushion on the end—similar to the scheme for collecting the curculio.

Mr. Deavor used this tester. In only four hours he and another man filled it with kernels from 264 ears of corn.

The third takes advantage of the beetles' fondness for a lamp at night. From an ordinary barn lantern over a tub of water on the surface of which is a film of kerosene.

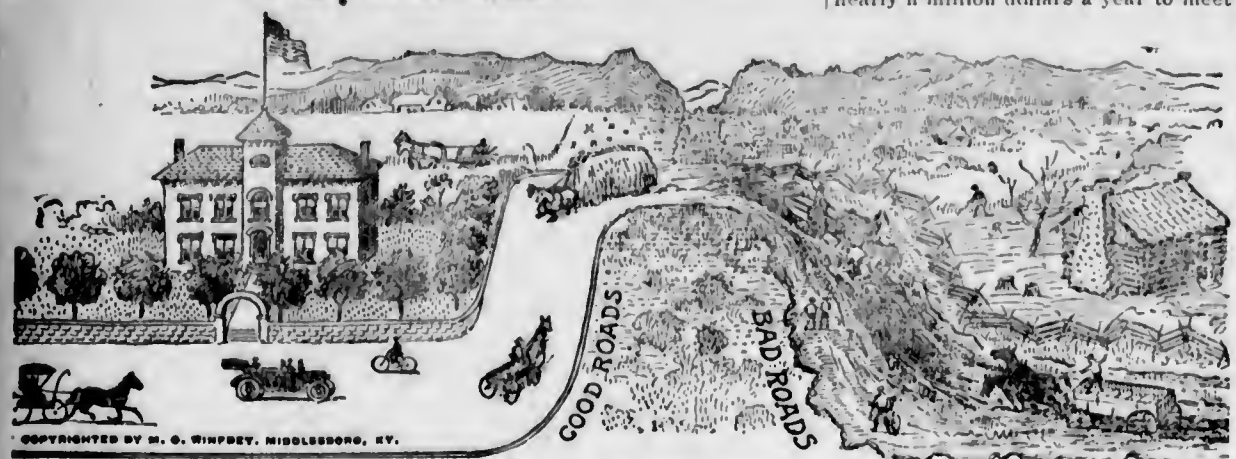

The latter plan seems most promising, as it induces the bug to seek their own destruction. They fall into the oil when trying to do whatever they try to do in the light.

$20 INCREASE PER ACRE ON LAND

ADJOINING ROADS BUILT UNDER NEW STATE AID LAW

This State Aid Law for Building Good Roads Promises To Be the Greatest Blessing Ever Brought To Kentucky Land Owners, If the Burden of the Taxes is Not Thrown Upon Them Through Unwise Legislation.

The new and greater Kentucky, as a result of wise legislation, as against the old Kentucky, with unwise legislation, high taxes, bad roads, poor schools and worse school houses. Which do you prefer?

An increase of at least $20 an acre on the value of all lands adjoining improved roads built under the new State Aid Law is estimated by expert calculators who have gone into the subject very thoroughly.

The building of these public highways will also increase all other lands in proportion in every county and district.

This most notable forward step will prove the greatest blessing that has ever come to the land owners of Kentucky.

It is the intent of this law that all taxable property shall bear its proportionate burden of taxation for this State Fund for road building.

It was not intended that the land owner, though possibly receiving the greatest benefit, should bear the greatest part of the tax burden. Such great sources of revenue as our railroad properties, distilleries, financial institutions and manufacturing enterprises will bear their just part, as well as all other taxable property. The throttling or crippling of any of these great resources by hostile legislation must lay a heavier burden upon the land owners and other tax payers.

More than 100 counties have already levied a tax upon themselves in order to take advantage of this State Aid Fund for the building of Good Roads in their respective sections. This year alone the fund amounts to $658,220. This sum will be increased by levies in these counties so that the sum expended will probably exceed two million dollars.

It is estimated that at least 6,000 miles of good roads will be completed under this new State Aid Law within the next 15 years, costing when completed approximately thirty millions of dollars. It is also estimated that the expenditure of the two million dollars this year will increase the value of property to the extent of at least twenty-five millions of dollars in the counties where these roads are built.

This is a splendid beginning. What a difference this will make to the land owners, the farmers and all others who make use of county roads, whether for business or pleasure. There are many fine farms in Kentucky 20 or more miles from the railroad that are not worth half as much as if they were near a railroad station, for the reason that it is too far to haul farm products to market over the old-fashioned dirt roads, which are practically impassable for nearly half of the year.

What a difference, though, when these same farms shall have been connected with the railroad or the market with a good State road over which it is easy to drive and haul as compared with the old roads. To haul a large load over a good road, even twenty miles, is easier and quicker than to haul it over five miles of the old time winter mud road. These good roads, therefore, will bring the distant farm nearer to the market and add greatly to the profits of the products of the farm.

Under the supervision of competent state and county road engineers, county seats and the most populous sections of the State will be connected by improved public highways, bringing the church, school and market nearer the door of every family. Then will come a new era of prosperity in Kentucky. With the markets thus of ready access, the farmer can market his products of all kinds to better advantage in every way—do it in less time, with more ease, less cost and greater profit than ever heretofore.

While good roads are more necessary and of more economic importance than possibly any other civil improvement to which the people of the State can turn their attention, there are other important things to be done. Such wholesome tax reforms must be arranged. The patrons of the school donated a bountiful supply of cream to the entire number of scholars and visitors.

A number of our citizens motored to Big Spring Saturday evening to attend a Masonic banquet.

In spite of the rain and hail Sunday afternoon the following young people composed a party to Twin Oaks: Misses Guedry Bramlette, Nell Smith, Mary Alexander, Elizabeth Cain, Mary Henry, Lottie Bandy and Margaret Conniff. Whooping Cough.
"When my daughter had whooping cough she coughed so hard at one time that she had hemorrhage of the lungs. I was terribly alarmed about her condition. Seeing Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so highly recommended, I got her a bottle and it relieved the cough at once. Before she had finished two bottles of this remedy she was entirely well," writes Mrs. S. F. Grimes, Crooksville, Ohio. Obtainable everywhere.

Thos. A. Gray, of Garfield, has an old-time plow used by his father more than seventy-five years ago. It is made with a wood mould board and steel point, and is a good plow yet. We can realize now what our forefathers had to contend with in tilling their crops. They made good crops, raised large families and fought the Indians. We do not fully appreciate our blessings and privileges, peace and plenty.

SCHOOL CENSUS

For Cloverport Completed—Small Gain Over Last Year—Many Vacant Houses Seen

Miss Laura Satterfield has just completed the school census for the city of Cloverport. In regard to the work she writes as follows:

The enumeration of the pupils of the Cloverport High School was completed last Thursday. Last year so many people had moved to town, but this month we saw more vacant houses in town than since taking the census. Somehow there has been a tendency to drive the people away, rather than draw them to town. The count shows 485, a small gain over last year, with four illiterates. In connection with this work, a census was taken of the adult illiterates and sent to the county superintendent. This is being done all over the State to arm Kentucky in its fight against illiteracy.

Prevent Hog Cholera.

The B. A. Thomas Hog Powder has a record of 95 per cent. cures of Hog Cholera. If you feed your hogs as directed, you need never fear hog cholera nor any other hog disease. And the directions are very simple, just about what you are doing, plus a few cents worth of B. A. Thomas Hog Powder in the feed twice a week.

Usually though, Cholera gets in before we know it. Then it requires close attention to each hog—each hog must be dosed—and if you will dose them as directed you will save better than 90 per cent. If you don't, the B. A. Thomas medicine costs you nothing. We—not some distant manufacturer—pay your money back. For sale at Wedding's drug store, Cloverport, Ky.

WILLIAM S. BENSON

New Chief of New Bureau of Naval Operations.

Washington (Special): The selection of Captain William S. Benson, commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, as chief of the new bureau of operations, has met with almost universal public approval. Admiral Fletcher declined to take the post, which will be in many respects the most important in the navy, next to that of the secretary.

PRESIDENT HUDSON,

Of The Henderson Route, Entertains Members of Daviess Fiscal Court and Other Prominent Owensboro People.

LUNCHEON AT IRVINGTON.

President R. N. Hudson, of the Louisville, Henderson and St. Louis Railway Company, was host on Wednesday to the Fiscal Court, including all of the magistrates, except Squires Hite and Riney, and County Judge Lancaster, and several other county officials, on a rock road inspection trip up the railroad. President Hudson's private car was used by the county officials, at his invitation, and it left the depot early in the morning and returned the middle of the afternoon.

President Hudson informed County Judge Lancaster that his road would co-operate with the officials in the county road building program. He said that he would give the county the benefit of every rate concession that it was possible to make. He realized that good roads, he said, were of great benefit to all the railroads as feeders, and that any side tracks, switches or conveniences that his road could provide for the county to lessee the cost of construction, would be gladly made. He took occasion to compliment the progressive step of the Fiscal Court in the purchase of its big trucks and trailers, for quickly transporting its road materials. He gave several instances of his own knowledge where the trucks were being used at great advantage to the counties.

Rock quarries at Webster and Mystic on the railroad were inspected, and the capability of the production of crushed rock was shown. At Mystic, where both the city and county now obtain their road material, a quarry of fifteen cars per day is in operation. At Webster the quarry can turn but twenty-five cars per day. President Hudson advised the county officials that he would personally see that the county was supplied with any number of cars which it might require for its rock hauling. If 100 cars per day were required, he stated, they would be forth coming.

The members of the party were entertained at Irvington for luncheon. In the party besides President Hudson and Trainmaster Hensley were County Judge Lancaster, Esquires Cook, Davis, Boulware, Smeathers, Ware, Weikel, County Engineer I. W. Spurrier, County Clerk Weir, Postmaster Floyd Laswell, City Engineer Henry Talbot, Cary L. Applegate, Dr. Hugh Kimbley, and Dr. V. A. Harl, city physician, and R. W. Owen.—Owensboro Messenger.

TORPEDO SINKS AMERICAN SHIP

German Submarine Destroys Oil Tank Boat.

THREE AMERICANS ARE LOST

Grave Concern by United States Officials is Manifested Over Report of Destruction of Oil Tank Ship Off Scilly Islands.

London, May 3.—A torpedo sank the American oil tank steamship Gulf Light, 3,202 tons, off the Scilly Islands, according to a neutral news report. The Gulf Light left Port Arthur, Texas, April 10, to Rouen, France.

Mrs. Gunter, of Bayonne, N. J., received a telegram from the company, notifying her that the vessel had been struck by a torpedo, and that her husband was dead.

Captain Alfred Gunter, of the Gulf Light died of heart failure. Two members of the crew jumped, and it is believed, were drowned. One of the crew was injured.

The Gulf Light was sighted apparently in a sinking condition south-eastward of the Scilly Islands. Four trawlers went to the rescue and brought the survivors to the harbor.

The tanker arrived at Port Arthur, Texas, from Bremen on April 6, and sailed on April 10, for Douen with a cargo of 55,000 barrels of oil. She was last reported April 12, when 257 miles northwest of the Tortugas.

Washington, May 3.—Authorities here view with grave concern, unofficial reports that the American oil ship, Gulf Light, had been torpedoed by a German submarine off the Scilly Islands, south of England.

It had been the fear of officials that the German "war zone" operations would result in the sinking of an American ship, by a German submarine. It now appears that not only was the vessel torpedoed, but according to information received here, three American lives were lost as a result. The case of Leon C. Thrasher, the American who lost his life in the torpedoing of the British ship Flaba, by the Germans, was regarded as in part raising the issue most feared as a source of complications by this government. The present case apparently constitutes a much more serious offense. In that it combines within itself not only an attack on the American flag and the destruction of American property on the high seas, but also involves the loss of American lives.

Officials here decline to comment on the dispatches from London, because they have not yet been confirmed by any official messages reaching the state department. It was pointed out that the matters involved are of too great consequence for official utterance, based on reports which may later prove to be either inaccurate or incomplete.

The vigorous note sent to Germany by the United States with reference to the proposed war zone operations affords, of course, the basis for the position the United States government may be expected to take in the matter.

GREECE PRESS INDIGNANT

Declares Allies Refuse Guarantees of Compensation to Enter War.

Rome, May 3.—The Greek parliament was dissolved, and following general elections on June 1, the new parliament will open on July 10, says a dispatch from Athens. The Greek press is indignant over the refusal of the allies to guarantee compensations to Greece on the condition of her intervention on behalf of the entente power. Great resentment also is expressed regarding the present efforts of the allies which now are aimed to hasten Bulgaria's intervention. It is generally considered that a declaration of war by Bulgaria against the enemies of the entente powers is imminent.

CHAPTER XX.

Braine Tries Another Weapon.

"What I want now," said Braine, as he paced the living room of the apartment of the countess, "is revenge. I've been checkmated enough. Olga; they're playing with us."

"That is nothing new," she replied, shrugging. "At the beginning, I warned you. I never liked this affair after the first two or three failures. But you would have your way. You wanted revenge at that early date; but I cannot see that you've gone forward. Has it ever occurred to you that the organization may be getting tired, too? They depend solely upon your invention, and each time your invention has resulted in teaching nothing but zero."

"Thanks!"

"O, I'm not chiding you. I've failed, too."

"Are you turning against me?" he demanded bitterly.

"Do my actions point that way?" she countered. "No. But the more I view what has passed, the more disheartened I grow. It has been a series of blind alleys, and all we have succeeded in doing is knocking our heads. I can see now that all our failures are due to one mistake."

"And what the devil is that?" he asked, irritably.

"We were in too much of a hurry at the beginning. Hargrave prepared himself for quick action on your part."

"And if I had not acted quickly he would have started successfully on one of his world tours again, and that would have been the last of him, and we should never have learned of the girl's existence. So there's your argument."

"Perhaps you are right. But for all that we have not played the game with any degree of finesse."

"Bah!" Braine lit a cigarette and smoked nervously. "I can't even get rid of that meddling reporter. He has been as much to blame for our failures as either Jones or Hargrave. I admit that in his case I judged hastily. I believed him to be just an ordinary newspaper man, and he was clever enough to nullify my suspicions. But I'm going to get him, Olga, even if I have to resort to ordinary gun-man tricks. If there's any final reckoning, by the Lord Harry, he shall get a chance in the witness stand."

"And I begin to think that that little child of a girl has been hoodwinking me all along. By the way, did you find out what that letter said?" she asked after a pause.

"Letter? What letter?"

"She sprang from her chair. 'Do you mean to say that they have not told you about that?' Olga became greatly excited."

"Explain," he said.

"Why, I was at the garden day before yesterday, and a man approached and asked if I was Miss Hargrave. Becoming at once suspicious that something very important was about to happen, I signified that I was Miss Hargrave. The man slipped a paper into my hand and hurried off. I took a quick glance at it and was dumfounded to find it utterly blank of writing. At first I thought some joke had been played on me, then I chanced to remember the invisible ink letters you always wrote me. Understanding that you were to visit the cave in the morning, I had one man at the garden take the note. And you never got it!"

"Some one shall pay for this carelessness. I'll call up Vroon and Jackson at once. Wait just a moment."

He went to the telephone. A low muttering conversation took place. Olga could hear little or none of it. When Braine put the receiver back on the hook his face was not pleasant to see.

"That girl!"

"What now?"

"It seems she had been out horse-back riding that morning. She had seen one of the boys cross the field and suddenly disappear; and she was curious to learn what had become of him. With her usual luck she stumbled on the method of opening the door of the cave and went in. She must have been nosing about. She didn't have much time, though, as the boys came up to await me. Evidently she crawled into that old chest and in some inexplicable manner purloined the letter from Jackson's pocket. They left to reconnoiter; and it was then that Jackson discovered his loss. When Florence heard them returning she jumped into the well. And lived through that tunnel! The devil is in it!"

"Or out of it, since we consider him our friend."

"And I had her in my hands, note and all!"

"But with all that water there will not be any writing left on the letter."

"Invisible ink is generally indelible and impervious to the action of water; at least the kind I use is. I'd give a thousand for a sight of that letter."

"And it might be worth a million," Olga suggested.

"Not the least doubt of it in my mind. Olga, old girl, it does look as if my star was growing dim. We'll never get our hands on that million. I feel it in my bones. So let's settle down to a campaign of revenge, without any furbelows. I want to twist Hargrave's heart before the game winds up."

"You wish really to injure her?"

"I do not wish to injure her. Far from it," he replied, smiling evilly.

"You want her dead?"

whispered Olga, paling.

"Exactly. I want her dead. And so if all my efforts here come to nothing, so shall Hargrave's. His millions will become waste paper to him. That's revenge. The Persian peach smashed."

"Poison? You shall not! You shall not kill her!" vehemently.

"Tender hearted?"

"No. If I must in the end go to prison, so be it; but I refuse to die in the chair."

"Very well, then. We shan't kill her, but we'll make her wish she was dead. I was only trying to see how far you would go. The basket of peaches is in the hallway. Every peach is poisoned. No man in the country knows more about subtle poisons than I do. Have I not written books on the subject?" ironically.

"And they will trace it back to you in a straight line," she warned. "I will not have it!"

"I can go elsewhere," he replied coldly.

"You would leave me?"

"The moment you cross my will," emphatically.

It became her turn to pace. Torn between her love of the man and the danger which stared her in the face, she was for the time being distracted. All the time he watched her with malignant curiosity, knowing that in the end she would concur with his evil plans.

"Very well," she said finally. "But listen; we shall be found out. Never doubt that. Your revenge will cost us both our lives. I feel it."

"Bah! The law will have no hand in my end. I always carry a pellet; and that ring of yours would suffice a regiment. She will not die. She will merely become a kind of paralytic; the kind that can move a little but not enough; always wheeled about in a chair. I'll bring in the peaches; resy and downy. One bite, after a given time, will do the trick. If they suspect and throw them out we have lost nothing but the peaches. A trusted messenger will carry them to the Hargrave house. And then we'll sit down and wait."

Meantime, in the library of the Hargrave house, Florence and Jim were puzzling over the blank sheet of paper.

"I'll wager," said Jim, "the water washed all the writing away. The lire does not seem to do any good. We'll turn it over to Jones. Jones'll find a way to solve it. Trust him."

"What are you two chattering about?" asked Susan, who was arranging some flowers on the table.

"Secrets," said Jim, smiling.

"Humph!"

Susan pattered about for a few minutes longer, then crossed to the reception room, intending to go upstairs. At that moment the maid was admitting a messenger with a basket of fruit.

"For Miss Hargrave," said he. He gave the basket to the maid, touched his cap awkwardly, and swung on his heel, closing the door behind him. He was in a hurry to deliver another message.

"O, what lovely fruit!" cried Susan, pausing. "I'm going to steal one," she laughed. She selected a peach and began eating it on the way up to her room.

The maid passed on into the library.

"What's this?" inquired Florence, as the maid held out the basket. She selected a peach and was about to set her white teeth into it when Jim interposed.

"Wait a moment, dear," Florence lowered the peach. Jim turned to the maid. "Who sent it?"

"I don't know, sir. A messenger brought it, saying it was for Miss Hargrave."

"Let me see if there is a card."

But Jim searched in vain for the card of the donor. At once all his suspicions arose. "Don't touch them. Better let the maid throw them out. Fruit from unknown persons might not be the healthiest thing in the world."

"What do you think?"

"That in all probability they are poisoned. But there's no need trying to prove my theory right or wrong. Ask Jones. He'll tell you to throw them away."

"Horrible!" Florence shuddered. "But they do not want to poison me. I'm too valuable. They want me alive."

"Who can say?" returned Jim gloomily. "They may have learned that they cannot beat us, no matter what card they turn up. I may be wrong, but take my advice and throw them away. . . . Good Lord, what's that?" startled.

"Some one cried!"

"O, Miss Florence!" exclaimed the maid, terror stricken as she recalled Susan's act. "Miss Susan took a peach from the basket and was eating it on the way to her room!"

"Good heavens!" gasped Jim. "I was right. The fruit was poisoned."

Jim had had enough to send for a specialist he knew. The specialist arrived about twenty minutes after Susan's first cry. To his keen eye it looked like a certain poison which had for its basis the venom of the cobra.

"Will she live?"

"O, yes. But she'll be a wreck for some months. Send her to the hospital where I can visit her frequently. And I'll take that peach along for analysis. No police affair?"

"No. We dare not call them in," said Jim.

"That's your affair. I'll send down the ambulance. Keep her quiet. She'll have a species of paralysis; but that'll work off under the treatment. A strange business."

"So it is," agreed Jim grimly.

Florence knelt beside her friend's bed and cried softly.

"You called me just in time. An hour later, nothing would have saved her. She would have been paralyzed for life."

Jim accompanied the doctor to the door and went in search of Jones. He found the taciturn butler eating the fruit basket, his face gray and drawn, though his eyes blazed with fury.

"Poison!"

"A pretty bad poison, too," said Jim. "We can't do anything. We've just got to sit still. But in the end we'll get them. That devil . . ."

"No, my friend; that devil. The woman is mad over him and would commit any crime at his bidding. But this is his work. We want him. He wasn't without courage to send this fruit, knowing that I would instantly suspect the sender. Yet, I have no definite proof. I could not hold him in court in law. He will have bought the fruit piece by piece, the basket in a basket shop. He will have injected the poison himself when alone. Poor Susan! That messenger was without doubt some one over whom he holds the threat of the death chair. That's the way he works."

Jim tramped the room while Jones carried the fruit to the kitchen. The butler returned after a while.

"What about that blank sheet of paper?"

"It has to be dipped into a solution; after that you can read it by heating. I have already dipped it into the solution. The moment the heat leaves the sheet the writing disappears again. The ink is waterproof. I'll show you."

Jones got a candle from the mantle, lit it, and held the sheet of paper very close to the flame. Gradually, almost imperceptibly, letters began to form on the blank sheet. At length the message was complete.

"Dear Hargrave—The Russian minister of police is at the Blank hotel under the name of Henri Servan. He is investigating the work of the Black Hundred in this country and can free you from their vengeance if you supply the evidence needed."

"Now, what evidence can he want?" asked Jim.

"Such as will prove Braine an undesirable citizen."

"And then?"

"Quietly pack him off to Russia, where he is badly wanted."

"Who sent this message?"

"One of our mysterious friends. We have a few, as you already know. But I'll go and make this man Servan a visit. I have seen the real minister, and if this man is the same one, something of importance may turn up. I shall want you somewhere about here. I'll let you have this letter. Remember, heat brings it out and cold

Remember, heat brings it out and cold air makes it vanish. Now I'll go up for a moment to see how that poor girl is getting along. We are lucky; there's no guineaying that."

"You're a clever man, Jones," said Jim.

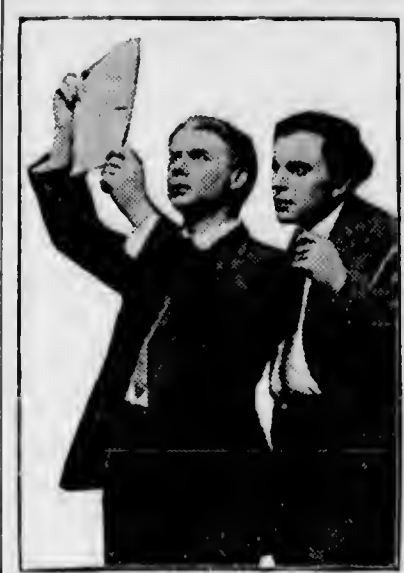

Jones turned upon him, his face grave. The two men looked steadily into each other's eyes. Jones was first to turn aside his glance, as he had something to conceal and Jim had nothing.

When the ambulance took the terrified Susan away, Jones addressed Florence gravely.

"I am going out and so is Mr. Norton. Do not leave the house; not even if you have a telephone call from me or Norton. Both of us will return; so don't let anything bother or confuse you."

"I promise," said Florence, struggling with a sob.

Jones went downstairs again, paused by a window as if cogitating, and suddenly threw it up and looked abroad. A rustle among the lilies caused a smile to flit across his face. So they had sent some one to learn the effect of the poison? Or to follow him should he leave the house? He retired to the kitchen and gnawed some explicit orders to the chef, orders which did not in any way refer to cooking. Then Jones and the reporter left the house, each quite aware that they were being followed. Near the Blank hotel they separated in order to confuse the stalker. He might deduce and follow the wrong man. But it was evident that this time he had been directed to follow Jones; for he entered the hotel a minute after Jones.

Meantime a second spy, whom Jones had not seen, had observed the transfer of the invisible writing and had immediately informed Braine, who was not far away. That his poisoned fruit had stricken down an outsider troubled him none at all. But that mysterious message he meant to have; it might be a life and death affair, it might be a clue to the treasure, or the whereabouts of Hargrave.

Thus, while only one man followed Jones, several kept a far eye on Jim. Jones scribbled his name on a blank card and had it taken to the Russian's room. The page eyed that card curiously. It was different from anything he had ever seen before. In one corner were written three or four words which resembled a cross between Hebrew and Greek.

"Humph!" muttered the boy. "Whadda y' know about that? Chicken scratches; but I guess the hell rings Russian. On your way, Horstense," he cried to the hall maid, who wanted a look at the card. "Up t' the room, sir. He'll see yuh!" The boy kept the silver salver extended expectantly, but Jones went past without apparently noticing the hint.

The Russian was standing by a window when Jones knocked and was bidden to enter.

"You are not Hargrave."

"Neither are you the Russian minister of police," urbanely.

"Who are you?"

"I am Hargrave's confidential man, sir."

The two men eyed each other cautiously.

"You speak Russian?"

"No. I am able to scribble a few words; that is all."

The Russian lit a cigarette and smoked leisurely. He was in no hurry.

"No, I am not the minister; but I am his accredited agent. I am empowered to brag back to Russia a man who is known here by the name of Braine, another by the name of Vroon, and a woman who calls herself a countess and unfortunately is one. All I desire is some damaging proof against them that they are outlaws in this country. The rest will be simple."

"They have all three taken out naturalization papers."

The Russian waved his hand airily. "Once they are in Russia those documents will never come to light. This man Braine, it has been learned, has long been in the pay of Prussia, and has given the general staff of that country many plans of our frontier fortifications. I do not know what any one of the three looks like. That is why I sought Hargrave."

"I will gladly point them out to you," said Jones, rubbing his hands together, a sign that he was greatly pleased.

"That will be very good of you, I'm sure," in a rumbling but perfectly intelligible English.

"And suddenly they all three will disappear?"

"Suddenly; and you may believe me that from that time on they'll be heard of never more."

Jones Paused by a Window.

"All this sounds extremely agreeable to me. Mr. Hargrave will be happy to hear that his long enforced hiding will soon come to an end."

"All you have to do, sir, is to point them out to me."

"It may take a week or ten days."

"My government has waited for ten years to gather in this detectable trio. A month, if you like."

"The sooner the better. I shall call this evening after dinner. We shall begin with Mr. Braine; and generally where he is is the woman. Vroon will be the most difficult."

"After dinner, then, since you know some of his haunts. There is a reward."

Jones laughed shortly. "Keep it yourself, sir. Mr. Hargrave would willingly double whatever this reward is to eliminate these despicable creatures from his affairs."

"Thanks."

While this conversation was taking place Norton idled about; and feeling the cravings for a cigarette, prepared to roll one, only to find that he hadn't the "makings." So fate urged him to step into the nearest tobacconist's. He asked for his favorite brand and passed over the silver.

Braine and his companions saw Norton enter the shop. It agreed with their plans perfectly. The tobacconist happened to be afflicted with the order. So they hurried into the shop. Jim instantly realized that he was in a trap.

"How can I get out of here?" he whispered to the tobacconist.

The latter smiled. "I have to obey these gentlemen. I don't know what they want you for; but if I made a move to help you I should find my own throat cut without saving yours."

"The devil!"

Jim made a dash for the rear door, to find it locked. Even as he fumbled with the key, Braine and his companions flung themselves upon the reporter and overpowered him.

"Ah, my friend Braine!" he said.

"My friend Norton!" jeered the victor.

"And what do you want; some peaches?"

"A paper, my friend, a little secret of paper with invisible writing on it. We promise to give you something in exchange for it."

"What?" asked Jim with as much nonchalance as he could assume.

"Life."

"Search," said Jim. "You won't object to my smoking?" He began to roll a cigarette while they passed over him. He struck a match; the pleasant aroma of tobacco floated about his head.

"He's got it on him somewhere. I saw him take it. He's got his nerve with him."

The cigarette glowed. Jim smoked hurriedly.

Through every pocket they went. The contents of his wallet lay scattered at his feet, his watch dangled from the chain. The cigarette grew shorter and shorter. Suddenly one of the men stretched out a hand and whisked the cigarette from Jim's lips. He threw it to the floor and stamped out the coal.

"I thought so!" he exclaimed, holding out the scrap of burnt paper towards Braine.

The words "Dear Hargrave" were all that remained of the message. With a snarl of rage Braine whipped out his revolver.

"I will give you one minute to tell me what that paper contained."

"And after that minute is up?"

"A bullet in your stomach."

Quick as a flash Jim's hand shot out, caught the loosely held revolver, gave it a wrench, and brought it down savagely upon Braine's head. Then he reversed it and backed toward the front entrance.

"Au revoir, till we meet again, gentlemen!"

Landing of English and French Troops at the Dardanelles.

BRITISH ADMIRALTY'S REPORT

Claim Made That the English Soldiers Now Hold Strongly Entrenched Positions on the Gallipoli Peninsula. Turkish Reports Have the Allies Driven From Nearly Every Point of the Peninsula.

London, May 1.—In an official statement just issued the British admiralty gives the first detailed story of the landing of the British and French troops for the reduction of the Dardanelles forts. The Turks made a desperate resistance at several places, but, according to the official account, the British troops now hold strongly entrenched positions on the Gallipoli peninsula as far inward as Krithia, about five miles from the tip. It is admitted that the landing operations cost the army a heavy toll of lives. It is announced that the casualties in the fleet, which supported the landing parties, are small, but on the other hand, official statements issued in Constantinople assert that several British cruisers were damaged, a British destroyer was sunk in the Narrows and that the French cruiser Jeanne d'Arc was struck by shells from the batteries and set afire.

A dispatch to a news agency from Athens says the British troops have occupied Gallipoli town, near the entrance to the Sea of Marmora. There is no confirmation of this report, but an official statement issued by the German general staff says there was continuous fighting there for two days. Troops were landed near Bulair, across the head of Gallipoli peninsula from Gallipoli town, but the admiralty statement is silent re the operations of this force.

In contrast to the British official statement, the Turks assert that the British have been driven from every point of the peninsula except Gaba Tepeh, and that the Asiatic side of the strait, where the French forces effected a landing, has been entirely cleared of the invaders.

Official casualty lists of the Mediterranean expeditionary force include the names of Brigadier General Napier, who has died of his wounds, and Brigadier General Hare, wounded.

ALLIES' WARSHIPS HIT

Three British Cruisers and French Battleship Damaged by Turks.

London, May 1.—The following official Turkish statement is forwarded from Constantinople by way of Amsterdam:

"Sixteen armored cruisers and many destroyers attacked our advance batteries in the Narrows. They fired thousands of shells on our batteries and infantry positions and wounded a number of soldiers. Two transports off Sedd El Bahr were repeatedly struck by our shells. One was beached. The British battleships Majestic and Triumph were damaged and withdrew from the fighting line. In the last few days the enemy fleet has undertaken no effort against the Narrows."

A later dispatch from Constantinople says that the British battleship, Vengeance and French battle cruiser Jeanne d'Arc were also damaged and an English destroyer was sunk.

Another German Air Raid.

London, May 1.—Reports received from the east coast tell of another German air raid. Lowestoft, on the Suffolk coast, eight miles south of Yarmouth, one of the points bombarded in Thursday's raid, was the scene of the latest visit. Four Zeppelins were reported off the seaport. Details of their operations have not yet been reported.

DUNKIRKE BOMBARDED

German Land Guns Now Within Range of French Coast City.

London, May 1.—Dunkirke, on the North sea in France, has been bombarded by big German land guns. Many shells were thrown into the city. Twenty persons were killed and forty-five wounded.

Another sensation came from the east, where it is announced that German cavalry, which succeeded in getting around the extreme right of the Russians, has invaded the Russian Baltic provinces.

Allies Gain in Belgium.

Paris, May 1.—The official communiqué says: "In Belgium, to the north of Ypres, our attacks have progressed along the whole front to a depth varying from 500 meters to one kilometer (540 yards to two-thirds of a mile). We have captured two successive lines of trenches and have made numerous prisoners."

A THOROUGH TEST

One to Convince the Most Skeptical Cloverport Reader.

The test of time is the test that counts. Doan's Kidney Pills have made their reputation by effective action. The following case is typical. Cloverport residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the proof complete.

Testimony like this cannot be ignored. Mrs. Edward Cullen, Eighth St., Cammerton, Ind., says: "I suffered from backaches and headaches and was not able to sleep well. My back was very lame and housework was a burden. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and from the first there was a change for the better. I am still using them and the results are very satisfactory." (Statement given April 7, 1907.)

Over five years later Mrs. Cullen said: "I always praise Doan's Kidney Pills when I have the opportunity. They certainly acted like magic on my kidneys and it was not long before I was permanently cured."

INIMICAL TO GOVERNMENT

Declares Rockefeller's "Private" Correspondence Has to Do With Breaking Down of the Government—Colorado Situation Reviewed.

Cincinnati, May 3.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., states that he gave out private correspondence and that he did not have to give it up. I want to say that no correspondence has to do with the breakdown of government is private.

"New York city," Mr. Walsh said, "is the center of the potential power of the land. In that city is one man, John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the richest man of all time, whose more than a thousand millions preclude all the fields of industry."

Thus Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on Industrial Relations replied to Mr. Rockefeller's defense of himself and his home in the Colorado situation, in an address here.

"The Colorado situation is controlled from 26 Broadway, New York, the office of the Standard Oil company. The history of this situation is a history of the exploitation of labor and of bloodshed."

"I have nothing but pity for John D. Rockefeller, Jr. That 'Junior' after his name has stood him in good stead. From it one might consider that he is young. But he is in his forties. Now, I tell you he does not do a thing but carry out orders from Tarrytown, N. Y. Yes, it is indeed John D. Rockefeller, Sr., who is operating in Colorado. It is this old man, not the son. So if this commission does nothing more than lift the veil of mystery about 26 Broadway it will not have been in vain."

Mr. Walsh sketched briefly the situation in Colorado. "Mr. Rockefeller in his letter to me stated that it appeared singular to him that I was one to disturb the industrial peace," continued Mr. Walsh. "If the trial of Lawson and the Ludlow massacre is industrial peace then God forbid that we have peace. I fully agree with Mr. Rockefeller that the women and children at Ludlow were not shot, but were smothered to death, and I lay this at the door of the Rockefeller group."

"It is a crime in Colorado to fix prices, but in a letter from L. M. Bowers to J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. Bowers said: 'The Colorado Fuel and Iron company usually leads in the fixing of prices.' Mr. Bowers is now in the east. Watch and see if Mr. Bowers is brought back to Colorado and punished for what is a crime in that state, the fixing of prices."

John Bunny, Famous Actor, Dead

John Bunny, the famous movie actor, died at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y., last Monday. He had been ill about three weeks of a complication of diseases. He was known not only in the United States, but in all corners of the globe. Bunny was for years in drama, and later went into vaudeville, but was a flat failure. He then went into the picture business and was an instant success.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR

An air craft of unknown type raided the east coast of England, dropping bombs on Ipswich, sixty-six miles northeast of London. Three houses were set on fire.

It is confirmed that Italy has informed the allies of the terms on which she will enter the war on their side. The proposed agreement is to the effect that Italy's interests shall be protected by the allies after the war.

Paris reports slight gains north of Ypres, where the Germans are said to have been forced to give up their offensive and direct all of their efforts to defending their positions. General quiet is reported at other parts of the western front.

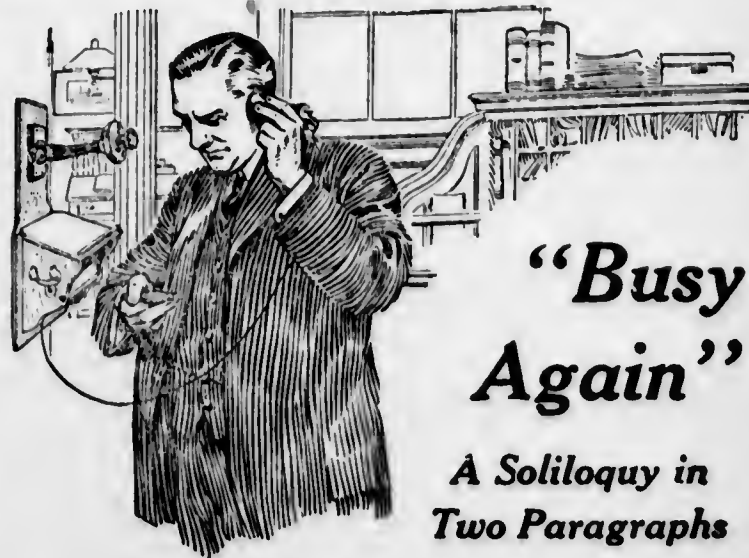

The German war office says that attacks on the German positions on the west bank of the Ypres canal have failed, and that southeast of Verdun and advance of more than 100 yards has been made. Slight gains are reported in Russian Poland.

Petrograd announces that Germany has assumed a strong offensive along the entire front from Poland to Bukovina, and that all attacks have been repulsed.

The Germans have fortified their positions recently taken on the west bank of the Ypres canal, according to the statement issued in Berlin, which describes the repulse of French attacks in the Champagne region and on the heights of the Meuse, where attempts were made to recover lost trenches.

In the French official statement the bombardment of Dunkirk by German heavy guns is announced. This bombardment was at first reported to have been by German warships, but both the French and the German official reports make it clear that the operation was by land batteries. In the French communiqué it is added that British aviators later found the positions of the German guns and dropped bombs on them, with what effect is not told.

The four Zeppelins have made a raid on England and dropped bombs on Lowestoft. No report has yet been received of the damage inflicted there.

ENGLISH DESTROYER SUNK

Trawler Lost, Destroyed by Germans—Division of English Ships Rush to Scene and Pursue German Craft in Running Fight.

London, May 3.—The Recruit, a British destroyer, and two German torpedo boats were sunk in a series of fights between surface and undersea torpedo craft in the North sea. A British trawler, which was attacked by units of the German flotilla, also was sunk.

The Recruit was a small destroyer of 385 tons, built in 1896. She was 219 feet long and had a speed of 29.5 knots. Her normal complement was 60 officers and men, indicating that probably about thirty-five officers and men were lost when she went down. The four destroyers of the "L" class mentioned as having sunk the two German torpedo boats after a chase, are new boats, laid down in 1919. Vessels of this class displace 965 tons and are 360 feet long. They have a speed of 29 knots and carry three four-inch guns besides four 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The affair was announced by the admiralty in the following statement:

"A series of small affairs took place Saturday in the neighborhood of the Gallipoli and North Hinder Lightships. The British destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine. Four officers and twenty-one men were saved by the trawler Daisy. At 3 p. m. the trawler Colombia was attacked by two German torpedo boats from the westward. They attacked without hoisting their colors. The Colombia was torpedoed and sunk, only one deckhand being saved. A division of British destroyers, consisting of the Lafoey, Leeninas, Lawford, Lark and others chased the Germans. An hour's fight ensued, and both the German torpedo boats were sunk. The British suffered no casualties. Two German officers and forty-four men were rescued and made prisoners."

The French have begun a long range bombardment of the German fortifications at Metz, ten miles from the nearest French trenches at Pont-A-Massin, which already has resulted in considerable damage, according to an official statement issued at Paris. New asphyxiants were used without effect by the Germans along the western battle front.

Berlin reports that strong British and French attacks northeast of Ypres were repulsed, and that the new German positions are still intact. The German war office also records severe fighting in the forest of Le Pretre.

It was officially announced at Constantinople that the allied forces attacking the Dardanelles have been driven back with heavy losses, the Turks capturing all material and ammunition landed at Gaba Tebeh. Constantinople denies that the allies have made good their foothold at any point around the Dardanelles.

B W Carter Writes About Plans
Of the Corn, Clover and Stock
Club at Irvington

EXPERIMENT SUCCESSFUL

B. W. Carter, secretary of the Corn, Clover and Stock Club of Irvington, writes enthusiastically as follows: "By their fruits ye shall know them." Kind friends, my intention is not to preach a sermon, though the feeling that inspires these few lines is a kin to love of doing good in the Master's vineyard. I refer to the work of "betterment of conditions" both urban and rural. Back to the soil where patient toil causes the farmer's labor to be crowned with success; where he not only reaps the present crop, but can see that he is building for the future and where he can say with truth: "my land is more fertile, my family happier and this is a better community in which to live."

This, kind friends, is the fruit by which we wish to be judged—we of this section. Wide traveler, when you pass by, note the improvement in our schools and churches, witness the fields made green by scientific cultivation. Know then, that you have reached the Fourth Magisterial District where the people believe in community uplift. Proud, indeed, are we of our clubs and organizations.

The farmers are rallying around the banner of the Corn, Clover and Stock Club, like the spring larks, proclaiming good cheer. The club members are wide-awake again and feeling fine! We will meet you June 26, 1915, near the Irvington Experiment plot, to give an account of our stewardship, so to speak.

We boast of the fact today the plot is a mass of clover blossoms on the first day of May. Surely a record for such a dry season. Farmers, you have fourteen days more to view this crop as it will be turned under to feed a crop of cow peas. Get on the ground now! Do not wait for our barbecue the 26th of June because we shall all be busy then dispensing Kentucky hospitality.

Sincerely,
B. W. CARTER.

LIV-VER-LAX

All the Effectiveness, Not the Effect of Calomel.

LIV-VER-LAX is one of the most important medical discoveries of recent years. For a long time medical experts, realizing the harmful effects of calomel, have been striving to find a liver cleanser that would be just as effective as calomel, and yet be absolutely harmless in its action. Recently this remedy was actually put forth by L. K. Grigsby, in his LIV-VER-LAX.

LIV-VER-LAX is a harmless vegetable compound, designed solely for the treatment of liver complaints. The immediate favor it has met with in thousands of homes is proof positive of its real value.

If you feel worn out, tongue coated, and skin sallow, don't delay until it becomes dangerous, nip the trouble in the bud with LIV-VER-LAX. Insist on the genuine, bearing the signature and likeness of L. K. Grigsby, which is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. For sale by Kieuchloe's Pharmacy, Hardinsburg, Ky.
